• DESCRIPTION

Inspired by the tsukubai, or "crouching basins" of 13th century Japanese tea gardens, Charles Swanson's Zola is characterized by a perfectly centered circular aperture, generous rounded lines, and a balanced sturdy base.

As a basin the Zola is the perfect way to bring the calming and reflective presence of water into any interior design project. As a planter the Zola becomes the perfect home for a Bird of Paradise or your favorite orchid.

As a fountain the Zola concentrates the whirling motion of water toward its center, adding a soft, subtle, and soothing ambience to any space.
